

in loving memory

Our dearly beloved, Adam Radford-Stanheight, was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York. While living in Jersey City, Adam was known as an artist of film photography as well as a friend and promoter to local band Wrath of the Gods. Since October 29, 2004, Adam has been missing, and presumed deceased, his body not yet recovered.

Although we, as friends and family, understand that he is one of many presumed to have tragically lost their lives, our memory of Adam triumphs over the circumstances which took him from us. Adam is more than merely a victim.

We gather here today to remind each other of our connection to Adam, pay our respects to the Radford and Stanheight families, and to celebrate Adam's life.

Please join us as we come together to honor and celebrate the life of Adam F. Radford-Stanheight on October 29th at three o'clock in Church Square Park.

We will share memories, stories and moments with Adam that we shared together. Food, music, and friendly company will be provided for all.

Adam is best remembered for the care and kindness he showed to others. With a tender spot in his heart for animals and fellow human beings from all walks of life, his absence is felt deeply by the community he was taken from.

Today, we remember Adam as an artist, a friend, a son, and, most of all, a compassionate soul.

We will hold a moment of silence before celebration of life festivities commence. Please remember to silence all pagers and mobile phones.

Although we are all grieving during this time, let us take a moment to be grateful for the years we had together. Friends and family have prepared to share memories and celebrate a very special life.

Today marks seven years since the disappearance of our Adam. The following people will be speaking today to share happy memories they have shared with him: Joseph Radford, Melanie Stanheight, Trina Gilford, Gabriel Radford, Patricia Watts, and Judith Stalbeck
